(Below) His mount: The B.A. Double Eagle (2 Gipsy Six) which Flt. Lt. Rose will fly.

A variable-pitch-over-the-handlebars effort seen at the recent Paris inventions exhibition; in spite of the resemblance, the inventor is not Mr. James Maxton.
